'Who will pay?' chief arena worry: straw poll

A straw poll taken by an Arlington Heights businessman suggests village residents might approve the Chicago Bears stadium at Arlington Park Race Track if it can be built at no cost to the taxpayers.

Michael Silverman, president of the Chamber of Commerce and owner of Heights Cleaners, 405 S. Arlington Heights Rd., said a week's worth of balloting in his store showed 20 persons approved the stadium idea, while 17 were opposed.

Customers were not pressured to vote in the straw poll, Silverman said.

"The (ballot) box was there on the counter for the people to vote if they wanted to," he said.

Silverman said the mock ballots asked three questions.

- Are you in favor of the stadium proposed for Arlington Park Race Track?
- Would you be in favor of the stadium if it could be built at no cost to the taxpayers?
- If you are not in favor of the stadium, how would you like to see the race track property developed?

Most of the answers to the third question said the Arlington Park property should be left the way it is now or acquired for a park.

"What's wrong with the way it is now?" was a typical response, Silverman said.

Flood-control work may start in fall

by KURT BAER

Flood control has become a quiet issue in Arlington Heights in the three years since torrential rains last poured into hundreds of basements.

The public clamor for government action that followed in its wake largely has died out.

Progress in implementing flood prevention projects has not been obvious, because nearly all of the work so far has gone into land acquisition or engineering plans.

Nearly $300,000 of the $750,000 worth of Arlington Heights federal revenue-sharing funds earmarked for flood control have been spent to buy land or pay for engineering drawings.

But the silence may be broken this fall when bulldozers tear into Hasbrook Park.

TRUSTEE FRANK Palmatier, who as chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding has been directing the flood-control program, said regrading plans for Hasbrook Park may be ready for final village board approval Sept. 8.

The work in Hasbrook is just one of nine major projects outlined in a $16 million plan to end flooding in Arlington Heights. In scope and cost — $192,000 — it is one of the smallest projects in the plan.

Though there has not been widespread flooding in Arlington Heights since Aug. 25, 1972, Palmatier says he still believes there is enough public support to finance most of the flood-control projects over the next several years.

"While it's true we've been reasonably dry, some areas of the village have had enough water to constitute a threat, even though it did not do any actual damage," he said.

RAINS THAT HAVE caused water to rise in the storm sewers and flood the streets in neighborhoods such as Pioneer Park and Hickory Meadows are "reminders," Palmatier says, of the need to finish the program.

Looking ahead to 1976, Palmatier envisions the construction of the $650,000 Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls project, restoration of the Hasbrook Park land and the start of construction on the Salt Creek project.

The Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls project will involve construction of a new storm water-retention basin between Douglas and Belmont avenues, south of Thomas Street, and a new storm sewer into the Arlington Knolls neighborhood.

Land for the basin was purchased this year.

Landscaping work and tennis courts have been incorporated into the Hickory Meadows plan.

Hasbrook Park cannot be resodded until next spring, even if the reconstruction is done this fall. The project includes regrading the ball fields in the park, and dredging the existing pond.

THE SALT CREEK project will provide storm water storage on the nine-hole golf course being planned by the Arlington Heights Park District for the recently acquired Arlington Heights Nike Base land, New Wilke and Central roads.

Although the land has been deeded

Mobil bucks Ford, urges phased oil cost decontrol

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mobil Oil Corp. Sunday deserted President Ford's stand for immediate decontrol of the price of domestic crude oil, saying it was potentially "too big a shock to America's fragile economic recovery."

Mobil took its new position in a letter to members of Congress by Chairman Rawleigh Warner Jr. in which he urged Congress to enact "a phased decontrol of oil prices over an extended period of time . . . in the best interest of the nation."

Warner's stand also put Mobil virtually alone among the major oil companies, most of whom have enthisiastically endorsed President Ford's desire to end the price control Aug. 31.

IN SIDING with Congress' enacted desire to phase out the controls slowly, Warner said Mobil is for complete removal of the controls but he said ending them in a single step would be hazardous because it would cost American consumers $8 billion annually, assuming the present $2 import duty on foreign oil is lifted.

"And," Warner said, "this would stimulate higher prices, higher wages and perhaps some loss of jobs."

He said efforts to offset this expensive impact by a windfall tax on the profits of oil companies would fail. He said it is too hard to define windfall profits — "today's windfall profits may become tomorrow's vital earnings as inflation drives up industry costs and volumes of 'old oil' diminish."

He said industrial users would have to bear fully half of the increased fuel costs generated by sudden decontrol, particularly the airlines, trucking lines and public utilities.

LAST WEEK Pres. Albert Casey of American Airlines said the impact of sudden decontrol would be disastrous on the domestic carriers.

Warner said the proposal to give rebates to consumers to offset price increases would not work because the industrial users probably "would not be candidates for rebates and their increased costs would be passed on to individual consumers, thereby canceling the benefits these individual consumers might receive from their rebates. In short, the rebates would not be enjoyed by those adversely affected."

He said he had come to the conclusion that phased decontrol would better serve the interests of the nation and of large integrated oil companies, such as Mobil.

CAB opposes higher air fares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Civil Aeronautics Board documents reveal board opposition to the Ford administration's request that airlines be allowed to increase fares to cover fuel price increases without the traditional hearing.

Although the CAB has not directly responded to the President's request, its views were detailed in a notice issued last week. The timing apparently was accidental.

The pass-through question centers on how to deal with anticipated new increases in the already inflated price of jet fuel.

Average fuel prices for U.S.-scheduled airlines climbed from 12 cents a gallon in 1973 to 27.2 cents a gallon in June. Adminstration and aviation industry officials predict they could be pushed up another 3 cents a gallon by the decontrol of domestic oil prices Aug. 31.

CAB sources acknowledge decontrol could put the airlines in such a financial pinch that some kind of emergency action would be necessary.

But they also say adoption of the administration approach could cost travelers an extra $240 million to $300 million each year, create chaos in an already confusing array of ticket prices and ultimately hurt the airlines themselves by driving away passengers.

The alternative, the CAB says, would be to make fewer airplanes carry more passengers, cutting airline operating costs. But the board acknowledges this reduced level of service also would ground planes and put airline personnel out of work, adding to the nation's unemployment woes.

ULTIMATELY, BOARD sources predict, a blend of the two approaches

Home 'farmers' show off treasures at Harvest fest

by JILL BETTNER

It was a lot like an old-fashioned county fair, complete with hot dogs and beer, a greased pig contest and exhibits of some of the finest-looking vegetables you ever saw.

The prize-winning "farmers" at the Arlington Heights Park District Harvest Festival Saturday may have been dressed in bermuda shorts and sunglasses instead of blue denim overalls, but it was obvious they know how to work the land.

Rows and rows of more than 200 exhibits in the park district garden club's amateur flower and garden show filled one of the tents set up for the festival at the Army's Nike base.

The festival was staged to give gardeners like Dorene Mills, 1506 N. Prairie Ave., a chance to display what they've grown in home gardens or park district garden plots.

IT WAS A GOOD day for Mrs. Mills. She and her husband took "Best of Show" with their yellow banana hot peppers, finishing just behind sweepstakes winner Max Moeller, 74, 409 S. Highland Ave. Moeller received more blue ribbons than any other entrant.

Relaxed and enjoying the picnic atmosphere of the festival, Mrs. Mills talked about the joys of tilling the soil and the gardening boom that has amateur farmers all over the country scrambling to buy enough jar lids to finish canning their harvests.

"There's something about having a garden of any kind," she said. "Once you get used to working the land, you never want to give it up. And you're constantly amazed at the rewards you get.

"They say you can't sell insurance to a farmer. He'll depend on the Heavenly Father for sun and water and six inches of earth. He knows if he puts in the fourth ingredient — hard work — he's going to survive. It's just nice to know you don't really have to be dependent on anyone else for food," Mrs. Mills said.

JAMES GOSSET, an Arlington Heights truck farmer, was the only one who took advantage of the farmers' market at the festival to make some money by selling his produce. There was one other vegetable stand, but the mother-daughter team operating it probably didn't make much of a profit and didn't plan to, either.

Betty and Maryann Urick put up a sign saying, "Urick's Vegetables — Name Your Price!" and cheerfully proceeded to bargain with customers interested in their tomatoes.

"We go to the store and feel sorry for people who don't have garden plots," explained Maryann. "We don't care about the money, we just thought it would be fun to do this today. It's my father's birthday, and since he's the grower, anyway, we're going to give whatever we make to him."

Discomfort, heat expected to go on Northwest suburban residents can expect another siege of hot weather through Thursday, with temperatures hovering in the 80s and 90s. The heat wave entered its second day with Sunday's temperature narrowly missing the year's high of 94. Stiff breezes and scattered clouds kept the temperature from climbing above 91 at O'Hare Airport. This, combined with 58 per cent humidity, put the discomfort index at 83. Most persons feel uncomfortable when the index rises above 75. A spokesman for the U.S. Weather Service said 90-degree weather is forecast for today and humid weather with temperatures lingering in the upper 80s is expected Tuesday through Thursday.

Crash kills trustee's daughter

The daughter of Elk Grove Village Trustee Ronald L. Chernick was killed in a car crash Saturday afternoon on Ill. Rte. 38 near Elburn. The trustee was injured slightly. Nancy Jean Chernick, 18, was fatally injured while riding with her family to Northern Illinois University, DeKalb. She would have started her freshman year there. The girl died about 5:35 p.m. in Mercy Center Hospital, Aurora, of multiple injuries more than five-and-a-half hours after the accident, said Deputy Thomas Schultz of the Kane County Sheriff's Police. Trustee Chernick, 47, and a daughter, Gail, 13, were released after treatment at Geneva Community Hospital. A son, David, 21, and Chernick's wife Marian were not injured. Schultz said the accident occurred while the family was westbound in a station wagon on Ill. Rte. 38, about a mile west of Ill. Rte. 47. The Chernick vehicle collided with a car driven by an Elmhurst man, Robert O. Ayers, 49.

Pharmacist nabbed in drug deal

A 53-year-old Des Plaines apprentice pharmacist was arrested early Sunday on seven narcotics charges following an undercover deal with agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group. Agents said they arrested John Duffin in his room at the DeVille Motel, 1275 Lee St., Des Plaines, after he allegedly sold them about $100 worth of seconal. He was charged with four counts of possession and three of delivery of controled substances. Agents said they set up the arrest through earlier dealings with Duffin, an employe of the Des Plaines Pharmacy, Lee Street and Algonquin Road, during which they allegedly bough quantities of barbiturates, seconal, amphetamines and dexedrine valued at about $300.

Russ grain sales cost to consumer: 2.5%, Burns says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, saying inflation still is "a very serious problem," Sunday predicted that grain sales to Russia will push up domestic food prices as much as 2.5 per cent.

Chairman Arthur F. Burns called July cost-of-living figures, showing an annual inflation rate of more than 14 per cent, a "temporary setback" in economic recovery.

"Inflation continues to be a very serious problem," he said in a televised interview on CBS-TV's Face the Nation. The July statistics were "a warning that we ought to take seriously, but let's not get alarmed about a single month's figures. If we conduct our policies properly, we can continue to make headway with the inflation problem."

BURNS ESTIMATED grain sales to the Soviet Union will increase domestic food prices by "a little more" than the 1.5 per cent figure which Agriculture Sec. Earl L. Butz has used.

"It might be 2 per cent. It might be 2.5 per cent," the Fed chief said. "I think that's the order of magnitude."

He said the forces moving grain prices up are "stoppable," but only at a heavy future cost.

"I don't think we ought to infringe on our foreign economic policy by trying to manipulate the price of farm products," Burns said. "Farm products are sold in highly competitive markets. The increase in the price of wheat, in corn, in soybeans I deplore. But there are some things in life that we just have to accept."

He said predictions that gasoline prices will rise as high as 90 cents a gallon are "wild figures." He said lifting controls on domestic oil prices, combined with removing import fees and taxing away excess profits made by oil producers will mean a rise of about 2.5 cents per gallon.

AN INTERVIEWER noted recent price rises by auto and steel industries in the face of weak demand, and asked Burns if the balance of supply and demand on the free market were falling apart.

"I can't say we're losing it," Burns replied. But he added, "The manufacturers are receiving too little attention and I think this is a dangerous trend."

Burns noted at one point: "A certain inclination seems to have developed in the business world and in the labor world to keep pushing prices up, wages up."

College teachers to go on strike today

The Cook County Teachers' Union announced Sunday its 1,400 members will go on strike today when classes for some 47,000 students are scheduled to begin.

Union Pres. Norman Swenson said the teachers would set up picket lines at the eight city colleges because the school board has refused to grant the union a 10 per cent cost-of-living salary increase or to retract proposed cuts in the current pay scale.

Kissinger wins Israel-Egypt agreement

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has achieved general agreement between Israel and Egypt on the major issues for a new peace pact, including using Americans as peace watchdogs in the Sinai desert, diplomatic sources said early Monday.

The sources said the remaining chief task in Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy between Egypt and Israel is getting the two sides to agree on the pact's wording.

They said Kissinger was flying later Monday to Alexandria to hand Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Israel's suggested draft of key points in the proposed settlement which he hopes to complete within a week.

According to the sources, Kissinger won from Sadat Egyptian agreement on the use of American volunteers to man almost exclusively six of the surveillance stations in the Mitla and Gidi passes, military strongpoints in the Sinai desert.

Token American presence was specified for Israel's own main watchdog post, Umm Khashiba, and at a similar post that will be provided for the Egyptians, the sources said.

They also said there has been agreement on how far Israel will withdraw in the Sinai peninsula, seized in the 1967 Middle East war, and how far the Egyptian forces will advance their front line.

The sources did not give exact distances that have been agreed upon, but they said Egypt would be allowed to advance from its current position of about 10 miles from the Suez Canal across the four-mile-wide buffer zone now occupied by a U.N. peace-keeping force.

The Egyptians had demanded to be allowed to advance even further, the sources said.

The sources indicated Israel was giving up its occupation of the passes as well as the Abu Rodeis oil fields.

They said that despite Tel Aviv news reports to the contrary, Sadat has not withdrawn an earlier agreement that the pact would run until still another settlement is signed three years or more from now.

Details of the settlement are to be worked out by joint Egyptian-Israeli commissions with the United Nations taking part but having no vote, the sources said.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and his cabinet wrestled for four and a half hours on what concessions and other terms to make and then called in Kissinger for a negotiating session that lasted just as long.

"We made further progress in narrowing the difference, and I will take the Israeli ideas on a number of issues to Egypt," said Kissinger.

Ford activates U.S.-Canadian dam

Energy 'is our problem'

LIBBY DAM, Mont. (UPI) — President Ford threw the switch to activate a U.S.-Canadian hydro-electric project Sunday after saying an "enlightened self-interest" demands the United States seek energy independence while joining other nations in cooperative programs.

"We must — all Americans and Congress must — realize this is our problem to meet and resolve," Ford told a crowd of more than 3,000 at dedication ceremonies for the $470 million, 42-story Libby Dam in remote northwestern Montana.

"We cannot look elsewhere for the total solution despite the efforts for cooperation," he said, departing from a prepared text. "More important, we can no longer pretend the national energy problem does not exist . . . we have delayed far too long. Our vulnerability increases daily.

"We must act now to achieve the energy self-sufficiency vital to all."

Ford joined Canadian energy minister Donald S. Macdonald in starting up the first of four giant electric turbines now being installed at the multipurpose dam.

It virtually completed a long U.S.-Canadian program to harness and control the power of the Columbia River flowing across the border.

Ford and Macdonald, in separate speeches, said their nations would continue to cooperate with each other on energy matters wherever possible.

But both noted that Canada planned to gradually phase out its exports of oil and natural gas to the United States. Ford said those exports represent more than 1 million barrels of oil a day and that the United States would have to make up the loss from its own resources or become even more dependent on oil-exporting countries, primarily in the Middle East.

The 90 mile lake formed by the dam is about equally divided between Canada and the United States.

Sunday night Ford flew to Chicago to attend a yacht club dinner hosted by Mayor Richard J. Daley. On Monday, Ford scheduled a morning economic address to a hardware manufacturers convention and, before an evening flight to Washington, he planned a visit to Milwaukee to meet Wisconsin GOP leaders, have lunch with newspaper executives, hold a locally televised interview and address a White House conference on domestic policy.

SOME OF THE approximately 10,000 riders that turned out for the annual Moonlight Bicycle Ramble held at 2 a.m. in St. Louis head down Market Street on the first leg of 17-mile journey through the city. The event is sponsored by the Ozark Area Council and American Youth Hostels, Inc. It is reported to be the largest participating bicycle event in the world.

Frisco chiefs seek to rescind strike win

Angry San Francisco officials and organizations mapped legal maneuvers Sunday to rescind the benefits won by police and firemen last week and to fire them if they strike again. "The sense of outrage and betrayal is running so deep I think it will bring to the fore a reform movement that will be a direct confrontation between the citizens who live here and the public safety unions," said John Jacobs, a spokesman for the San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association.

FTC puts bite on some false teeth claims

Two false teeth adhesives, "Poli-Grip" and "Super Poli-Grip," do not really let denture wearers eat corn on cob, apples and other tough foods as advertised, the Federal Trade Commission said Sunday. The agency also said "New Extra Strength Effervescent Polident," a fizzing product billed as a cleanser for false teeth, will not clean dentures more than other similar products, despite advertising claims to the contrary. The agency issued a false advertising complaint against Block Drug Co., Jersey City, N.J., manufacturer of all the products involved.

Banks will be rescued in N.Y. issue: Burns

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns said Sunday the board would rescue banks stuck with large amounts of municipal securities should New York City default on its obligations to credit holders. Burns stressed there is still "ample time and ample opportunity" for New York City to avoid default. However, if the city does go under, Burns said the nation's central bank would be prepared to head off the widespread financial crisis that might ensue.

Cleveland Zoo, streets flooded

Police said Sunday heavy thunderstorms flooded the Cleveland Zoo, stranding animals in water up to their necks, and that looting had broken out in areas where homes were flooded. A police dispatcher said: "We had storm sewer back pressure blow streets 10 feet into the air, actually. Houses along the streets are flooded and now we are having massive looting . . ." The rain, measured at from 2 to 4 inches, also flooded out Cleveland Transit System Rapid Transit service and Shaker Rapid service.

The world

Indira: life returning to normal

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said Sunday life in India is gradually returning to normal after two months of executive rule, but she refused to say when the state of emergency will be lifted. In a televised interview (NBC-TV's Meet the Press), Gandhi defended her June declaration which resulted in the jailing of thousands of persons and imposed government censorship on news reports.

The state of emergency was necessary to dispel a "general atmosphere of irresponsibility" and prevent anarchy, Gandhi said, and peace now is being restored slowly in all spheres of activity.

'Veteran hospital killer' is sought

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI — Investigators sifted through reams of medical records Sunday in an attempt to piece together clues to the identity of a killer who deliberately injected patients at a Veterans Administration hospital with a paralyzing drug.

"It looks like the drug was administered intentionally," said Dr. Duane T. Freier, acting chief of staff at the Ann Arbor hospital. "We've ruled out accident, drug contamination and other possible causes."

At least 51 patients suffered respiratory failures since July 1. Eight patients died. Hospital officials said in a normal month, five to eight patients are stricken by respiratory arrests.

Freier said he thinks there is enough evidence to "convince a jury" the respiratory failures were deliberately caused. The first indication came last week when traces of a muscle paralyzing drug were found in the urine samples taken from surviving patients.

The drug has been identified as Pavulon, a powerful muscle paralyzing substance that is commonly used during surgery. Three patients whose urine samples revealed the presence of Pavulon were not supposed to be receiving the drug.

Blood and urine samples are now being tested at the FBI laboratory in Washington and a toxocology lab in Denver as well as the University of Michigan lab.

Dr. John D. Chase, the VA's chief medical officer, said lab results are beginning to prove hard scientific evidence to back up Freier's conclusion that "some or many" of the respiratory failures were murder and attempted murder.

Chase said the hospital has been authorized to immediately hire at least 20 additional nurses to tighten supervision of the wards.

"Morale is high," Freier said. "To my knowledge employes are answering questions freely and keeping their eyes open."

FBI agents have quizzed the hospital's 750 staff members, asking them, "What kind of person do you think would do this."

Freier said there is a "work lag" since only 200 of the hospital's 310 beds are occupied because of a halt on taking nonemergency patients.

Push for swift Papadopoulos execution

ATHENS (UPI) — Opposition leaders accused the government Sunday of tampering with justice by indicating it will commute death sentences for former dictator George Papadopoulos and two other convicted leaders of the 1967 military coup.

The Communist, Socialist and moderate Center Union parties issued separate protests. The Communists urged swift execution of the sentences handed down Saturday by a special appeal court.

The court convicted Papadolpoulos, 56, former Artillery Col. Nickolas Makarezos, 56, and former Tank Commander Stylianos Pattakos, 63, of high treason and sentenced them to death before a firing squad and dishonorable loss of rank.

Fifteen other defendants in the four-week trial were sentenced to prison terms ranging from life to five years and two were acquitted for lack of evidence.

Court-appointed defense attorneys said they would appeal the verdict.

Portugal's Costa Gomes refuses to oust Goncalves

LISBON (UPI) — President Francisco da Costa Gomes Sunday refused to oust Communist-backed Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves despite mounting pressure from moderate military leaders in Portugal's explosive political crisis. But Costa Gomes accepted a secondary demand by the moderates for the democratic election of a new 240-man military Assembly of the ruling Armed Forces Movement, known by its initials as MFA.

Military sources said Costa Gomes also agreed to bring the moderates back into the influential Revolutionary Council.

The president's move represented a compromise designed to buy time and head off the continuing threat of a military coup.

In the Azores, right-wing demonstrators, demanding independence for the strategic Atlantic islands, ransacked and forced the closure of the Communist party headquarters in Horta Saturday night. The Communists were escorted out of the building by troops and there were no reports of injuries.

Firms pay $100 million to U.S., foreign politicians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty-six corporations allegedly paid more than $100 million legally and illegally to foreign and domestic politicians and sales agents over the past decade, a survey of government and public documents showed Sunday.

The largest payments were made by the world's biggest corporation, Exxon, which claimed that at least $46 million paid to Italian politicians was legal.

Other large payments of corporate funds were made by defense contractors Northrop and Lockheed, and by Gulf and Ashland oil companies.

The information is contained in documents at the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Civil Aernautics Board, the Watergate Special Prosecutor's office, the Senate Multinational Corporations subcommittee, the Senate Banking Committee and a House International Relations subcommittee.

Northrop paid $450,000 in bribes to two Saudi Arabian generals and $1.1 million in illegal domestic political contributions in addition to $30 million in questionable payments to foreign agents.

The company defended the $30 million, contending it was for commissions on the sale of weapons abroad.

Northrop said its foreign payments plan was based on Lockheed's successful formula.

Lockheed has denied that it set an illegal pattern for any company to follow, but conceded in reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission that since 1970 at least $22 million was paid to "foreign officials and to foreign political organizations in a number of countries."

Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., of the Senate Banking Committee called a hearing Monday to try to learn why Lockheed was paying large sums to foreign politicians while the U.S. government was backing loans for the financially troubled aircraft manufacturer.

Proxmire said some of the Lockheed payments were "bribes ranging from a few thousand dollars to several million dollars" that had nothing to do with sales commissions to foreign agents or contributions to foreign political candidates.

Gulf admitted a $10.3 million fund from which $5 million was paid to Lebanese, Italian, Bolivian and South Korean government officials. Ashland made $15.1 million in questionable payments.

The 36 corporations and their alleged and actual legal and illegal payments here and abroad also include:

Hazy daze

As high schools prepare to open for another year, many freshmen will find the first weeks a real adventure

by BOB GALLAS

Tuba players, hold onto your shorts. Never take directions from strangers and don't buy any wooden elevator passes.

Dumb frosh.

While autumn means the state of many exciting high school activities among young people all over the suburbs, it also is a bewildering, sometimes scary, time for a downtrodden, little recognized minority — the high school freshman.

Because lying in wait is an oversupply of witty, experienced predators, their skills honed by at least one year of high school — the upperclassmen.

No, freshman hazing isn't what it used to be. Freshmen rarely push a peanut down the hall with their noses. Gone are the beanies, paddles and sometimes dangerous initiation rites former freshmen endured.

Hazing has taken on a more ingenious and lighthearted form of razzing, guaranteed to make the first few weeks of high school, well, interesting.

Some examples . . .

• A favorite at one school, band members at summer marching practice like to pull down the cutoffs of the freshman tuba player.

• At Forest View High School, Arlington Heights, upperclassmen introduce a frosh to the courtyard statue of a falcon, the school mascot. The introduction never is complete without a kiss for the stone bird from the hapless frosh.

• At St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, unsuspecting frosh will be "assigned" to wait at a specified door for a particular senior. The frosh's job? Why, opening the door, of course.

• At Buffalo Grove High School, there's the third-floor pass that's sold to freshmen. Trouble is, it's only a two-story school.

Some schools even encourage a mild sort of hazing.

At Wheeling High School, band director Jack Williamson's students have a "jug system," a type of detention for freshman band members who put in time cleaning up a band room, setting up chairs or organizing music stands.

"IT'S ALL DONE in fun, and the freshmen like it," said Williamson, who said he keeps a close eye on the kidding to make sure it doesn't get out of hand. "They (upperclassmen) have all gone through the same thing. It makes the freshman feel like one of the group right away," he said.

Williamson even has a plan for physical fitness buffs. After summer marching practice each day, a frosh, timed by a stopwatch, is assigned to run in, unlock the band room for the others, then run back out — all while the rest of the band stands at strict attention.

"Nobody cares who's going to be fastest. They just want to make sure they're not the slowest," Williamson said.

The kidding sometimes comes from the very top.

"Girls, you're just in time for the lecture on the War of 1884 which will be followed by my lecture on advanced algebra," said Buffalo Grove principal Clarence Miller to a pair of freshman girls in the school to pay fees. "Then it's on to the football field for a lecture on natural living," he said to a pair of questioning stares.

THE TRADITIONAL hazing still goes strong, from selling elevator passes and keys to nonexistent elevators to misdirecting a lost freshman. Unneeded pool passes still are sold — even at schools with no pools.

"We try to let them (students) know that hazing is not an accepted thing," said Louis Nettelhorst, Wheeling High School assistant principal. "But we still try to stay out in the halls as much as possible to keep an eye on things those first few weeks of school," he said.

And yet, though many principals claim that today's high school freshman is more mature and harder to fool, the hazing probably will go on. Perhaps it is aided by the basic nature of the freshman who doesn't easily let go of his elementary school trust of elders.

WAYNE SELVIG, Buffalo Grove High School athletic director, likes to tell the story of an "inspirational" talk given last season to his school's freshman "B" football team by varsity coach Grant Blaney. The B's were nearing an undefeated season and Blaney spoke at length to get the team up for still another win.

Speech over, the silence was broken as Blaney moved out of the room and one freshman turned to another to ask, "Who the heck was that?"

Dumb frosh.

CAB fights air fare hike

"Fare increases . . . on top of the significant increases in the past several years could severely dampen the travel market and hence (could) impair the industry's ability to maintain the present quality of service in view of what the traveler may be asked to pay," the board said.

In addition, it said, "A major national objective is to create incentives toward curtailed and more efficient use of fuel. A full pass-through . . . may not be consistent with that objective."

The alternative, reduced levels of service, would be obtained by raising the so-called "load factor" on which fares are based above its present 55 per cent.

IN OTHER WORDS, each passenger would pay for fewer empty seats. The airlines, bearing more of the burden for empty seats, would be encouraged to cut back the number of flights so each plane would carry a heavier load.

"Under this approach, the consumer would pay for the increase in fuel prices, not by an increase in fare, but by a reduction in the quality and convenience in the service he receives," the board said.

"On the other hand, the air transport system is today indisputably an essential element in the nation's economy, a fact which dictates maintenance of a level of service adequate to accommodate within reasonable and tolerable limits all who wish and need to use it."

2 Des Plaines residents nabbed on theft charges

Two Des Plaines residents were arrested Saturday after security agents reportedly found about $320 worth of stolen property in their car at the Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg.

Guaraci Oliveira, 31, of 1568 Pennsylvania Ave., was charged with two counts of possession of stolen property and one of theft over $150. A 15-year-old youth also was charged with possession of stolen property.

Police said the two were detained in the parking lot after J. C. Penney store agents followed them after allegedly observing Oliveira steal about $155 worth of clothing and sports equipment.

Also found in the car was about $80 worth of sports equipment believed to be stolen from Goldblatt's in Mount Prospect and about $85 worth of sporting goods suspected to be stolen from Sears, Roebuck and Co. at Woodfield, police said.

The juvenile was released to the custody of his parents, and Oliveira was released after posting a $3,000 bond, pending an appearance Wednesday in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Home from vacation, he finds car gone

Eduardo Diaz of Hoffman Estates returned home early Sunday from a vacation to discover his car had been stolen from the family garage, 437 Basswood St.

Diaz told police the vehicle was valued at about $2,690.

to the park district, the federal government still must approve the golf course plan, Palmatier said, and red tape could delay construction beyond next year.

Total cost of all the work in the first phase of the flood-control program is $4.16 million.

Palmatier estimates the $750,000 in federal revenue sharing will be exhausted by the time of the Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls project.

"At that time, we'll have to raise some additional money, probably through a bond issue," he said. The village board approved an estimated $3.4 million general obligation bond issue last October when it adopted a four-phase schedule for flood-control projects.

PALMATIER SAYS he is confident at least the first two phases of the plan will become a reality. Other parts of the program, including the 113-acre Lake Arlington, he calls "still very futuristic."

The village has applied for a half-million dollar state grant to buy the Lake Arlington land along McDonald Creek east of Windsor Drive. The cost of the land is estimated at $2.26 million. Design and construction of the lake will cost another $5 million.

Motorcycle slams into car, 2 men hurt

Two Arlington Heights men were injured late Saturday when the motorcycle they were riding went out of control and struck a parked car at the Gatehouse apartments, 557 E. Seegers Rd.

Mark Ritz, 23, of 431 E. Seegers Rd., the driver of the motorcycle, was reported in good condition Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital. The passenger, James Fortman, 24, of the same address, was released after treatment at the hospital.

Police said the motorcycle apparently went out of control in the parking lot of the apartment complex about 7:20 p.m. and collided with the car owned by James Hurin, 557 E. Seegers Rd.

Herald opinion

Special police a bad idea

Wheeling Township should proceed with caution in responding to a request from residents for a special taxing district to provide police protection for unincorporated areas.

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., representing homeowners in unincorporated Prospect Heights, proposed formation of the new agency to raise money for additional police patrols.

The special district, according to the proposal, would tax unincorporated properties. The revenue would go to hire off-duty sheriff's policemen to supplement the regular sheriff's police patrols in curbing vandalism and burglary.

The need clearly exists for municipal services of all kinds, including better police protection, in unincorporated areas of the Northwest suburbs. The solution, however, is not an additional special-purpose taxing district added to the layers of similar districts that already provide inadequate service and represent a barrier to effective reform.

What will happen to such a district when Prospect Heights completes its efforts to incorporate and becomes a municipality with, we assume, its own police department?

More importantly, how would the new district operate? Prospect Heights represents only two-thirds of the unincorporated-area residents of the township.

The remaining unincorporated areas are fragmented and cannot be patrolled efficiently. If the new district tries to provide service conscientiously to all those areas, it will run into the same problems faced now by sheriff's police.

Further, a police agency with few resources, no professional management and moonlighting personnel would seem to be destined for problems.

Even the large municipalities in this area find themselves hard-pressed to come up with funds for the sophisticated services needed to run a modern police department.

We think the long-term solution lies in the incorporation of Prospect Heights and the annexation of the remaining unincorporated areas by neighboring municipalities.

Formation of the special district should be considered only as an emergency, short-term measure and only after other alternatives have been exhausted.

It should be required to contract with an established police department for services and not be allowed to set up its own force.

And finally, it must self-destruct after Prospect Heights is incorporated. One more taxing district for this area is one more too many.

He said the mutinous word "annexation"!

Fence post
letters to the editor

Once again you have convinced me of the power of the press. The power to (1) misquote; (2) misinform the general public; and (3) and report only the news that the mayor of Des Plaines wants to hear.

Your reporter, Ms. Schmalbach, purposely misquoted me in her article on Aug. 7. She states in her article that I said, "Anyone who says that no cables were cut by strikers is a fool. There's no other way to fight back." But the truth is I stated that people cannot believe what CenTel says about cut cables. One cable could have been damaged and CenTel could say a dozen were cut and who could dispute it?

I also stated that we could not absolutely say that no one has committed any acts of vandalism against the company, in the form of cut cables because how could you possibly keep tabs on 900 people on strike 24 hours a day. Ms. Schmalbach also misquoted me by saying, "If there was a membership vote now, I think they'd vote to go back to work." When what I really said was, "Thank God this strike is in the hands of our bargaining committee and union. The company thinks if they sit back and just wait, they will overcome us. If we didn't have a union, the membership would probably vote to go back to work. But it is no longer up to the rank and file on what the outcome of this strike will be."

And last, but not least of all, Ms. Schmalbach quotes me as saying, "Desperate men do desperate things." A truthful quote would have been, "These people on strike should not be condemned for what happens during this strike. As time drags on and people grow more bitter towards CenTel, they will become desperate and desperate people do things they would not normally think of doing under normal circumstances."

And that, Mr. Editor, concludes my rebuttal towards an article that was grossly misleading and misquoted.

I will now proceed to use your paper in a constructive matter. I am housebreaking my dog. My neighbors will also continue to use your newspaper to wrap fish. Since your reporters are unable to report the news truthfully, these are the only good uses for your paper I can think of. I think it's a sad day in Des Plaines history when a major newspaper has to stoop to unethical tactics and desperate reporters have to write desperate articles.

Simon's plan designed to boost business investment

Congress faces critical 'capital formation' issue

by TOM WELLMAN
A Herald news analysis

One of the hottest issues facing businessmen, economists and Congress today is not the present economic climate; rather, it's how to meet the needs of business and industry once we've escaped the shadows of the current recession.

The controversy centers on "capital formation," a term which means the accumulation of funds for business and industry to invest for future development. The debate formally began on July 13, when Secretary of the Treasury William Simon unveiled his capital formation proposal before the House Ways and Means committee.

Simon's plan is designed to provide a tax break of eventually more than $13 billion a year to industry and to American stockholders. Other plans have been presented on this subject to the committee, but the heat of the present debate continues to rise around Simon's plan.

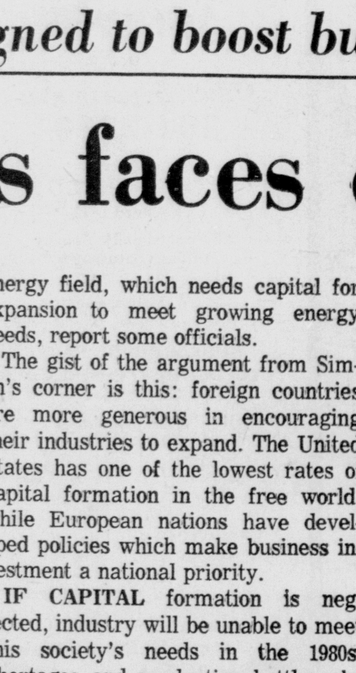
TRADITIONALLY, the act of capital formation has been accomplished three ways; by putting aside profits in savings, by selling stock or by floating bonds or otherwise borrowing money.

In testimony before the house committee, officials reported businesses are running low on profits for investment, and approaching borrowing limits. In short, they contend that the only way to gain more capital for expansion and development is to sell more stock.

Officials argue that capital formation must be a critical national priority, supported by government policy. Simon told the committee that perhaps as much as $4.5 trillion is needed between now and 1985, "three times the level of the recent past," for expansion. Especially hard hit is the energy field, which needs capital for expansion to meet growing energy needs, report some officials.

The gist of the argument from Simon's corner is this: foreign countries are more generous in encouraging their industries to expand. The United States has one of the lowest rates of capital formation in the free world, while European nations have developed policies which make business investment a national priority.

IF CAPITAL formation is neglected, industry will be unable to meet this society's needs in the 1980s. Shortages and production bottlenecks will occur, prices will be forced up, our economy will continue to stagnate and industry will thus be unable to provide the millions of jobs needed by out-of-work Americans.



WILLIAM SIMON

Simon's plan, as he explains it, is to encourage the American economy to redirect itself towards savings and investment, not consumer spending, and thus provide the capital to be used for industrial and business expansion.

To accomplish this, the Treasury Secretary has proposed the elimination of the "double taxation" of dividends, in which both corporations and stockholders are taxed. His plan would allow a company to take a tax deduction for half of the dividends it pays out, prior to calculating its taxes. The stockholder would also get a break in the form of a credit for taxes paid already by a corporation.

Without going further into the plan's specifics, it is designed to encourage the sale of stock on which dividends are paid. This would increase the amount of capital on hand for industries as well as providing a fiscally attractive break for millions of Americans who own stock or are considering buying it.

If Simon's plan were approved by Congress, it would go into effect in 1977 and save industries $2.5 billion the first year. In each year up to 1982, $1 billion a year would be added to the corporate tax break.

As a result of the plan, the federal government would have to either trim its budget or find new sources of revenue to make up the difference. The former fits neatly into the thinking of Simon and other fiscal conservatives; trim and balance the budget, they say, and you'll ease this nation's inflationary spiral.

AT THE CORE of the analyses of Simon and others is that the corporate tax rate is far too high to encourage capital formation. Reduce that rate, and business can reinvest and help produce a healthier American economy, they say.

A number of groups, including the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, support the capital formation argument. The Illinois Chamber has recommended liberalizing industrial depreciation, making permanent the investment credit and reducing the corporate tax rate, as well as supporting the end of double taxation.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has supported Simon's proposal, but Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has offered a counterproposal which is designed to approach capital formation from the direction of tax reform.

Mikva views capital formation as "nothing more than a code word for a whole new generation of tax loopholes." He is working with other Democrats on legislation which would establish a minimum tax deduction for the lower income brackets.

MIKVA IS arguing, as are other liberal Democrats, that the best way to aid the American economy is to spur it to continue spending money, rather than by plowing that money into savings. On the capital needs of business, Mikva mentions past government subsidies as examples of effective tools which in the past encouraged business to expand. Let's help the middle and lower classes to spend more money, not the upper classes and businesses to save money, seems to be his position.

Other critics of Simon's ideas include Joseph Pechman of the Brookings Institution, who points out that Simon's $4.5 trillion capital needs figure extends over a 10-year period of time and includes allowances for inflation. This makes it a little less frightening, he says.

He also argues that business and industry traditionally put together a "shopping list" of needs which far outstrips existing capital.

Other experts contend that the record of capital investment in foreign countries has been dictated by their own unique needs and cannot be cited as a justification for tax breaks for business in the United States. Others argue that business is already getting a big break from a corporate tax rate that is less than it appears to be. Still others say that the capital formation argument is just another rehash of past attempts by business to get preferential treatment from the federal government. Let the economy work itself out of the present recession, and the capital for new construction and jobs will be created, they say.

Perhaps the best summary arguments in this complex battle over the direction of economic growth were written by the Wall Street Journal and the Washington Post, in recent editorials which took opposite positions in the dispute.

The Journal wrote that Simon's proposal represented a "milestone in an absolutely vital national debate that ranges far beyond the technicalities of the tax code."

THE QUESTION is whether we're going to emphasize economic growth or redistribution of income, and the Journal backs the former. It accepts the basic premise that jobs will be created in this way, to pay for the increasing needs of the Federal budget.

The Journal defines the issue as follows: "Does it (the nation) want to split a smaller pie more equally or a larger pie less equally?" The larger pie is preferable to the Journal; economic growth must come first.

The Post's position, however, is that Simon's proposal is not a serious one. It contends that lower taxes and higher dividends will not necessarily spur people to invest money; rather, "that merely means more vacations in Acapulco for stockholders."

The Post's editorial also quotes Simon as pointing out that "we are a consumption-oriented society" that cannot break easily from its traditional patterns. Since we're so geared to consumption, and since the emphasis in the present recession is on consumption as a cure, "the present moment is a singularly inopportune time to crank up a public campaign for thrift."

THE POST concludes: "The trouble with Mr. Simon's latest efforts is that they sketch out little more than a plan to cut taxes for wealthy investors. Congress, quite properly, is altogether unlikely to respond. Productivity, growth and double taxation are of rising importance for this country. It's a pity to have them debated in terms that make tax reform even less than likely."

Diet, medicines best way to treat the gout

Within the past year my husband has had two attacks of gout in his foot. He is 48. What foods should he avoid? Is there any diet to prevent these attacks? What brings them on? Should he avoid certain foods all the time or just when he has an attack?

The idea persists that the best way to treat gout is by diet. That would have been true several years ago, but we now have medicines that are very effective in controlling gout so diet is of less importance than it once was.

Gout is caused by an excess amount of uric acid in the body. What is uric acid? It is a byproduct of the formation of DNA, that vital substance of genes, in the nucleus of all of the cells in your body. When a new cell is formed the DNA in the nucleus of a cell is duplicated like printing another picture to enable the new cell to be like the old one. That is how your new hair that replaces old hair on a regular basis has the same characteristics and color as the old hair.

The formation of DNA is a continuous process as long as you live, because your body is constantly regenerating itself. Red blood cells only live for 120 days and must be replaced. Your body manufactures three million new ones every second to replace the old ones. In some people this process is associated with formation of excess amounts of uric acid as a byproduct. Regardless of what you eat this process will go on.

The doctor says
by Lawrence E. Lamb

ONE OF the new medicines, allopurinol (Zyloprim), blocks the overproduction of uric acid by the cells and stops the process at its origin. There are other medicines for control of the acute attack of gout and to eliminate excess uric acid through the kidneys.

Efforts have been made to eliminate purines from the diet. This is achieved by eliminating foods containing abundant cell nuclei. Purines are the basic building blocks your body uses to make uric acid. However, since the purines come from amino acids from protein it is a losing battle. Experiments have been done by feeding calves just milk, and they grow new cells and form uric acid. Milk contains no cells and is purine-free. Regardless of how strict the diet is, you can only lower the uric acid level a tiny amount, not enough to prevent or control gout.

Because heart disease is such a common complication of gout it is a good idea to go on a low-fat, low-saturated fat low-cholesterol diet. You should use the same diet proposed to prevent heart and vascular disease for people who do not have gout.
Acute attacks are sometimes precipitated by excessive eating, as on holidays, excessive drinking and excessive exercise. The rule here is to follow the old axiom, everything in moderation.

Schaumburg Lanes to host bowling stars

Brunswick bowling stars, Vesma Grinfelds, Larry Laub, and Dave Soutar, will all do demonstration bowling at the opening celebration of the new Schaumburg Lanes, 115 N. Roselle Road, Schaumburg, on Sunday, Sept. 7, starting at 2 p.m.

These bowling stars will be helping to introduce the first Brunswick two-lane automatic scorer in the Midwest, and second in the country, at the new Schaumburg Lanes.

Chicago Bulls basketball star Bob Love will also be at the festivities that are open to the public without charge.

Vesma Grinfelds is the winner of three Professional Women's Bowling Association titles, and holds the distinction of being the only guest amateur to ever win a PWBA title. Bowling as an amateur back in 1971, she won the Las Vegas Showboat Classic. Her highest game in PWBA competition is a 299 although she has bowled two unsanctioned 300 games. Her highest series in tournament action is a 729. She has had five sanctioned 700 series.

In 1972 she was named San Francisco Bowler of the Year, as well as being named to the All-American Team that year.

In 1973 she captured the $1,500 first prize in the Ebonite Edge Classic. Miss Grinfelds is also a champion on ice skates. She has twice won the Central California Championships and has earned two gold medals from the U.S. Figure Skating Association.

Larry Laub is the winner of the 1974 Don Carter Classic. He won the 1972 Kansas City Open and PBA Los Angeles Regionals in 1970 and 1971. In 1969 he won the Lincoln Open and in 1970 won the Tuscon Open and the Los Angeles PBA Regionals.

The right-hander utilizes a semi-fingertip grip. He describes his delivery as a three-quarter roll. Laub has rolled four sanctioned 300 games during his career and three non-sanctioned perfect games. His highest sanctioned three-game series is an 810, although he once bowled an unsanctioned 824.

Dave Soutar made his first big splash in bowling in 1961 when at the age of 21 he won the annual PBA National Championship. In 1973 Soutar captured the coveted ABC Masters Championship in Syracuse, New York, defeating seven opponents and going through undefeated. it was the first time in six years a Masters champ has gone through undefeated.

Among his many PBA titles are Colorado Springs Open, 1965; Ft. Worth Open, 1967; Denver Open, 1968; American Airlines Open, 1969 and 1970; and the Showboat Invitational in Las Vegas; the Waukegan Open; the Bellows-Valvair Open, St. Louis; and the Lincoln Open, Nebraska — all in 1970. Soutar and Harnisch were BPAA National Doubles champions in 1965, and Soutar and Burton were the 1970 ABC Classic Doubles champions.

Soutar has 14 sanctioned 300 games and a high series of 826.

'Awkward age' tennis players find competition

by STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — American tennis players at the awkward age — too old for the juniors and not yet ready to tackle the top pros — finally are getting a break.

Seena Hamilton, a vivacious lady with a son of her own at the awkward tennis age, is teaming up with Houston University coach Bill Glaves to produce more tournaments in a newly-created under-21 division.

Equally important, they're ready to battle the pro players association to get more opportunities for youngsters to qualify for major tournaments.

"All we're asking is that a certain number of under-21s be allowed to compete in qualifying events for tournaments offering $25,000 or more in prize money," says Glaves, who also coaches the U. S. under-21 Junior Davis Cup team. "Under present rules, they just don't get a chance and yet these are the players who'll be out battling the pros as the stars of the future."

Under the point system of the Association of Tennis Professionals, the only way a player can get into a $25,000 or more tournament is to have ATP points and the only way to earn points is in a major tournament. Even to get into a qualifying round, a player must receive one of the few "wild card" invitations available from the tournament director or have earned points in a previous tournament.

Therefore, the under-21's unless they already have made it on the big time, rarely earn points. But both Glaves and Ms. Hamilton are convinced their top under-21 players are better than many of the lesser pros that have the required points, qualify or accepted outright, and then get bumped in a hurry from the regular draw.

"I feel the ATP is good for the game," says Glaves. "But I think the members have a tendency to perpetuate themselves. They don't like to open up more qualifying spots and more ways to gain points because they want self-protection.

"I think they get stuck too much on the words 'professional' and 'amateur.' That works particularly against the college player, who is not recognized because he is an amateur, yet the colleges have something like $2 million invested in tennis in the form of scholarships for perhaps 1,000 players, in match expenses and tournaments. There should be some sort of recognition for the better college players. Even an NCAA title isn't worth points."

"Young players need exposure, both to better players and to the public," says Ms. Hamilton, a vice president of the Eastern Tennis Association and founder of Creative Tennis Marketing, a firm that got Jimmy Connors his first TV commercial. She also produces New York's Annual Easter Bowl championships involving 500 young players and recently directed an International Under-21 tournament at Columbia University.

"There's hardly any place they can play once they leave the junior ranks (18 and under) and it's the same for older collegians during the summer months. Tennis players live for what they call a 'good win' over a good player or a 'good loss' — a fine showing against a top player even while losing. They can't get either one if they have no place to play. It's very discouraging, very depressing to the young players."

Ms. Hamilton, whose first Easter Bowl tournament seven years ago included Jimmy Connors, Brian Gottfried, Harold Solomon and Dick Stockton, is director of the U. S. Tennis Association's junior development program in the east. She knows a good player when she sees one.

At her urging, the USTA has created an official under-21 category and will, in the future, determine national rankings in that division. A national championship tournament is a probability in 1976.

Ms. Hamilton and Glaves are trying to set up other tournaments in that age class. In addition, they hope, after further meetings with ATP officials during the U. S. Open at Forest Hills, that a "middle circuit" of tournaments with $12,500 or less in prize money can be set up to give youngsters a better shot at earning points for the biggies.

"We're not asking for our top players to be accepted into the regular draw of big tournaments," sayd Glaves. "We're only asking for a chance to get some of them in the qualifying events — a chance to show what they can do."

Geiberger wins with key birdies

Al Geiberger steadied himself from a near disastrous stretch of holes Sunday to fight off the charge of Dave Stockton and defeat his longtime friend by three shots to win a second Tournament Players Championship in Fort Worth, Tex.

Geiberger built a four-shot lead early in the final round over the tree-lined Colonial Country Club course, frittered the advantage away with a string of bogies late on the front nine and then surged back in front with key birdie putts on the 13th and 15th holes.

He shot a 69 in his final tour of the 7,160-yard, par 70 layout for a 72-hole total of 10-under-par 270, breaking the competitive course record of 272 set 27 years ago by the late Clayton Heafner.

Anthony strikes Waukegan

Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., came up with a 240 average Sunday afternoon and amassed a 350-pin lead after five rounds in the $50,000 Waukegan Open Bowling Tournament. The tall southpaw, who has won over $87,000 this season, captured another six games to put his record at 12-with one more set of games remaining before the 24-man semi-final field is cut to five for tonight's title round.

Roy Buckley of Columbus, Ohio stands in second while Bobby Jacks of New Orleans is in third. Palatine's Les Zikes failed to make the cut. Tickets for the finals are $2 and are available at Bertrand Lanes, 2616 Washington Ave., Waukegan.

Halicki fires no-hit game

Ed Halicki, a gangling 6-foot-7 right-hander with a big breaking slider, pitched the National League's first no-hit, no-run game of the season Sunday to give the San Francisco Giants a 6-0 victory over the New York Mets and a split of their doubleheaders. Dave Kingman's, of Mount Prospect, fifth inning grand slam homer and Bob Apodaca's one-hit relief pitching over the final 2 1/3 innings paced the Mets to a 9-5 victory in the opener.

With a crowd of 24,132, the second largest of the season in Candlestick Park, cheering him on, Halicki struck out 10 and allowed only three baserunners. Rusty Staub reached on an error by second baseman Derrel Thomas leading off the fifth and Mike Vail walked after one out in the sixth. Del Unser walked with one out in the ninth.

Never on Sunday for Sox, Cubs

Carl Yastrzemski and Jim Rice homered to pace an 11-hit barrage by Boston and Bill Lee scattered eight Chicago singles Sunday as the Red Sox scored a rain-delayed 6-1 victory over the White Sox and handed Wilbur Wood his 17th loss. Lee, who upped his record to 17-7, twice pitched himself out of trouble as the Red Sox stopped Chicago rallies with double plays in the fifth and sixth innings.

Meanwhile, Jose Cruz slammed two home runs, Bob Watson added another and Cliff Johnson became the first Astros' player to hit homers in five consecutive games Sunday, powering Houston to an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Wilbur Howard rapped out four hits to pace a 14-hit attack that gave the Astros 45 hits for the three-game series. In the series, Howard collected 10 hits in 17 at bats, including seven in a row.

Sixkiller guns down Winds

Sonny Sixkiller came off the bench and passed for three touchdowns to lead the Hawaiians to a come-from-behind 28-17 victory over the Chicago Winds in a late Saturday night World Football League game. Jimmy 'The Greek' to set line for parimutuel betting

Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, best-known odds-maker in the country, will establish the early line for the Saturday, Aug. 30, Hambletonian harness race on the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds in southern Illinois.

For the first year since becoming an annual fixture at DuQuoin in 1957, America's most prestigious harness race for three-year-olds will feature pari-mutuel betting.

W. R. (Bill) Hayes II, President of the DuQuoin State Fair and host of the Hambletonian, which has its 50th running this summer, sought Jimmy "The Greek" to post the line.

It will be the first pari-mutuel wagering on horse races at fairgrounds tracks in Illinois. And the Hambletonian enjoys another first next weekend with live telecasting by CBS-TV (Channel 2 in Chicago).

Jimmy "The Greek" has a lifelong affection for harness racing dating to the Ohio County Fairs which he visited as a youth while growing up in Steubenville.

From the Ohio County Fairs at Wooster, Cadiz, Old Washington and other tracks, Jimmy "The Greek" has become a regular visitor at Hollywood Park, The Meadows near Pittsburgh and at Roosevelt and Yonkers Raceways in New York.

Jimmy Snyder (born Demetrios Synodinos 55 years ago in Steubenville) distributes his thrice weekly handicapping column to 242 newspapers. He also rates sporting events on his Mutual Network daily radio show.

And "The Greek" also publishes a monthly sports newsletter for the National Research Bureau. He regularly engages in public relations and political polls.

Snyder's fame grew as a big bettor, but he doesn't gamble now. His reputation began in 1945 when Snyder won $54,000 by picking Great Lakes Naval Training Center to upset Notre Dame at odds of 8-1 and 10-1.

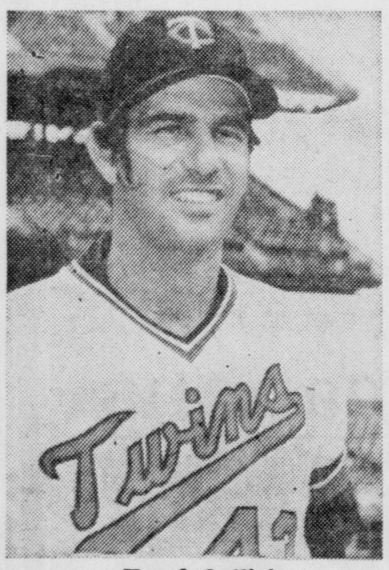
"I knew how good some of the Ohio boys on the Great Lakes teams were, and I knew that a couple of key Notre Dame players had been hurt the week before," Snyder explained. Great Lakes won, 39-7.

"The Greek" conducted his own poll in the Truman-Dewey Presidential election of 1948. He placed a $10,000 bet with New York bookmakers at odds of 17-1, and won $170,000 when Harry Truman was elected President.

Snyder has made odds on events from the National Football League Super Bowl to Academy Award winners and from the stock market reaching 1,000 plus in average to the arrival of cherry blossoms blooming in Washington.

So when pari-mutuel betting came to the 50th Hambletonian, it was inevitable that Jimmy "The Greek" would make the line.

Will Twins' Quilici become sixth ex-manager?



Frank Quilici

by MILTON RICHMAN

Five major league managers have lost their jobs in the past four weeks. Now with everybody asking who's next, Frank Quilici is getting most of the votes.

His boss, Calvin Griffith, says wait a minute before you elect him. He isn't thinking of making any managerial change. Not now, anyway.

This is not to be construed as any long term vote of confidence for Frank Quilici, says the Minnesota Twins' owner, because "everytime you give a manger one of those he's gone the next week."

Clavin Griffith never did pussyfoot around. He talks straight and deals straight, and if there's ever a dirty job to do, he doesn't delegate it to one of the hired hands. Anytime Griffith decides to get a new manager, he doesn't send word to his old one by way of someone else.

"I do it myself face to face," he says.

The Twins have won nine of their last 12 but still are only a game out of the cellar in the American League West.

Griffith is using these final six weeks to "take inventory" on the Twins, and on Quilici. He is searching his mind about his ball club and about his manager and while he's searching, he's also asking questions, one of them being why isn't Quilici tougher on the players than he is?

"Because he's too nice," says Griffith, answering his own question.

"He's trying to get tough now, but it's hard for him to do it after so long a time. You have to start the first day. You have to let the ball players know that when you speak, you're speaking with authority. Qucilici has many fine qualities as a manager. Personally I like him tremendously. He's a one hundred per cent organization man and does so much for the club public relations-wise, but he's just not tough enough on the players."

Griffith believes he knows the reason.

"Quilici is a person who had to struggle to stay in the major leagues because of limited ability," he says. "He feels ballplayers of limited capacity, young or old, should be given every consideration even when he has other players who might be able to do the job better than they can. I've talked to him a lot of times about this. I've talked to him like a Dutch uncle, telling him he can't be that nice a guy. He tells me 'oh, no, you're wrong, I do this and I do that,' but I don't see the results."

There are alwyas two sides to a story. When the season started, Griffith had every reason to be encouraged with a crew of solid hitters, a pair of good-looking rookies in outfielders Lyman Bostock and Dan Ford and a pitching staff bulwarked by Bert Blyleven and Joe Decker. But Decker came down with a stomach virus, knocking him out of action most of April and all of May, and Larry Hisle and Steve Brye also went out for long stretches.

Frank Quilici cannot be blamed for that. On offense, with hitters like Rod Carew, Rony Oliva, Steve Braun, Hisle, Ford and Eric Soderholm, until he fell down a manhole Wednesday, provided the Twins with ample sock, but their pitching is the worst in the league, and whom do you blame for that?

Griffith has been in baseball 51 years, starting as a batboy for the Washington Senators in 1924 and working his way up until he took over ownership of the club upon the death of his uncle, Clark Griffith, in 1955. He's not only board chairman and president of the Twins but also serves as general manager, so when he makes up his mind a manager is gone, he doesn't have to bother checking with anybody.

"The toughest thing in the world is to fire a manager," he says. "I wish I never ever have to fire another one. Letting go a manager is not what people think it is. There are other considerations that cause a manager to lose his job besides his capacity for baseball. Fans never think about that aspect of it."

Some of them think Griffith is rough on managers, that he changes them at the slightest whim, but the record says differently. In his 20 years heading the club, he has had seven managers, Charlie Dressen, Cookie Lavagetto, Sam Mele, Cal Ermer, Billy Martin, Bill Rigney and Quilici. Five of the seven were given their first chance to manage in the majors by Griffith.

"I'd pick Sam Mele as the best manager we ever had," he says. "Of course he won for us in 1965, but more than that, he was a person of authority. When he spoke, he didn't mess around."

Do you think Calvin Griffith is trying to tell Frank Quilici something there?

I do.

Money-making breakthrough

It took until 1916 before women were permitted to attend a boxing event in the United States, when Jess Willard and Frank Morgan fought at Madison Square Garden. It resulted in the biggest gate, to that time, in the Garden's history — $152,000.

Top winner

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Tennessee has the top winning percentage in college football in the last 50 years, with a 359-103-26 record and .762 percentage. Alabama is second with .76;, followed by Notre Dame, .755, Ohio State, .725, and Oklahoma, .714. Ties were computed as half won, half lost.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: Don't be demoralized

Yearling sale breeds $$$

John M. S. Finney sat at a table in his Arlington Park Hilton Hotel suite high above the race track working out the averages of the Second Annual Illinois Thoroughbred Breeders and Owners Foundation Select Yearling Sale.

It was late Friday night. It was, in fact, already Saturday morning, long after Finney's Fasig-Tipton Company of New York had auctioned off 18 horses in the race track's paddock for a total of $198,000, an average of $11,000 per head.

The average was lower than last year's $11,076, but so slightly lower that it had to be considered as much of a success as the sale of 1974, which had the third highest average among all select yearling sales in the United States.

It wasn't a big sale in terms of numbers of horses — the top Kentucky and New York yearling sales sell 300 or more each year — Fasig-Tipton Company was there just the same. And Finney, President of the nationally famous auctioneering firm, was there talking about the Illinois Sale with as much enthusiasm as he would have for any of the other sales his company handles each eear.

"The horses we sold here tonight wouldn't have brought any more money anywhere else in the country, and for that reason you have to consider it a success," said Finney. "The number of horses you sell doesn't matter. What matters is that the people here are offering decent horses that have decent chances of winning.

What does this sale mean in terms of the redevelopment of the Illinois thoroughbred industry?

What does kindergarten do for a person's education?" Finney asked rhetorically. "You get the breeders in the habit of breeding the better quality horses, horses that can run in open company, and in return you'll get the buyers who will commit the big money to get that quality. Those people are here in Illinois — they are all over the U.S. for that matter — buf they have been so soured on Illinois racing that it will take time to get them back.

"You'll get them back, though," Finney continued, "if you continue to offer better quality horses and if the Governor signs the new racing bill that is on his desk." (Governor Walker has until September 14 to act on the bill.)

One person who is apparently back in the Illinois fold right now is A. C. (Ace) Fessenden of St. Charles, who purchased the sale's highest priced yearling, a colt by the late stallion T. V. Lark, for $50,000.

"This sale has given me a little more confidence in Illinois and has gotten me reinterested in racing here," said Fessenden. "When racing got so bad several years back, I got so discouraged that I moved all my horses to Florida and cut down considerably on the number I raced. I really hope it gets going again," added Fessenden, "and I think this T. V. Lark colt will be a good horse to return with."

There were 25 horses catalogued for the sale, but two were scratched the day of the sale, and five were buybacks and will be recorded as not sold.

After the T. V. Lark colt that sold for $50,000, the next highest priced yearlings were colts by Fleet Nasrullah and another one by T. V. Lark, who went to R. J. Kirby of Chicago for $23,000 and $20,000, respectively.

Good idea to give new bike a checkup

(Editor's Note: One in a series of articles.)

by RICHARD BALLANTINE

Anticipate that any new bike will have something wrong with it. Dealing with a good bike store minimizes the possiblity but by no means eliminates it.

Last summer when I picked up a new dream from one of New York's finest stores, I was too bedazzled to give it anything but the most cursory inspection. But as I accelerated away from the store the rear hub and freewheel exploded in a blizzard of metal flakes and chips.

Here are the main points to watch:

• All nuts and bolts are secure. Every last one.

• Wheels should spin easily. When held off ground weight of valve stem should pull wheel around so valve is in six o'clock position. Wheel should be centered in fork arms or chain stays. If wheel can be moved from side to side and there is a clicking sound hub cones are out of adjustment. Check the rim is true by holding a pencil next to it and spinning the wheel. Brace the pencil on a fork arm or chain stay to keep it steady.

• Pluck spokes. All should be evenly tight and give the same twang.

• Check quality of lug welds on frame. Sight down frame to check for bends.

• Brake blocks should hit rims squarely and not drag when released.

• Gears should work smoothly and with no slippage. Test first with wheels off ground then on a ride.

• Pedals and chainwheel should spin easily but without side-to-side play.

• Ride the bike around the vicinity of the store for a few miles.

You may think that all this is a lot of trouble to go through. I have bought a fair number of new bikes for myself, family or friends. There was something wrong with everyone of them, and a few I rejected outright. You will save yourself a lot of grief if you invest some time at the outset on a careful inspection.

Ask Andy

To survive, weeds grow hardy

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Brenda Stroble, age 12, of Williamsport, Pa., for her question:

WHY DO WEEDS GROW BETTER THAN BEGETABLES?

Well, nobody promised that growing a vegetable garden is as easy as rolling off a log. Certainly it is not for dreary types who tend to regard every chore as a personal insult. It is for cheerful folk who enjoy doing things and relish the rewards. However, even these senisble types tend to feel aggravated by pesky garden problems, such as bugs and weeds.

The time to worry is when weeds refuse to grow in your garden. These wild plants manage to thrive in the poorest of poor soils — and they grow wherever they can. If your garden dirt is too poor for weeds, then you can bet your boots that it is too poor for your tame flowers and vegetables.

Weeds, of course, are wild plants and in the beginning all the world's plants lived in the wild. Those that survived had to adjust and adapt to the harshest condition of nature. They extracted food and water from poor soils, coped with droughs and floods, cold winters and hot summer suns.

They also had to multiply in order to survive from one generation to the next. So the plants of the wild world developed a multitude of cunning devices to produce seeds and to spread them far and wide. These factors explain why weeds are so hardy and also why they pop up in unexpected places. Naturally they have no good reason to specialize in suitable food for humans.

Our remote ancestors dined on the scanty roots and shoots, fruits and seeds of wild plants. Gradually they selected the tastiest types and patiently learned to cultivate them. The cultivated plants were pampered with rich soil and extra water. The best kinds were crossbred to produce superior species.

Plant specialists still carry on this gardening wizardry, and every year new and improved species appear on the market. However, these cultivated plants need extra tender loving care. They cannot survive the hardships of nature, as their wild weedy ancestors did.

Weeds thrive in meadows and vacant lots and along the waysides. Every year they strew their seeds far and wide. Some are sure to land in your garden, where they grow faster and better than your pampered plants. The trick is to pull the weedy invaders up by the roots — before they have time to produce and scatter another generation of seeds. This means fewer weeds next year, though a few uninvited wild guests are sure to arrive.

Andy sends a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Fred Thompson, age 12, of Des Moines, Iowa, for his question:

HOW ARE GEODES FORMED?

A rock collector regards a geode as a speical treasure. When found in its natural state it is disguised as an ordinary pebble, though rather lighter in weight. When we sliced one in half, we see that the inside is a pocket, filled, or more often partly filled, with glassy crystals. Ages ago, it started out as an empty pocket in a solid bed of limestone or some other rock. The semiprecious jewels were added, molecule by molecule, through ages of time.

Patiently the rainwater seeped and percolated through the original bedrock, dissolving particles of silica and perhaps other minerals. Moisture was trapped in the rocky pocket long enough to deposit its dissolved chemicals. Gradually, they lined the pocket with crystals. The secret treasure may be glassy clear quartz crystal. Sometimes fragments of other dissolved minerals colored the crystals with flowery pinks or purples.

Do you have a question to ASK Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY, in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Win at bridge

Spades give best percentage chance

The unlucky expert had us cornered again. This time he was all smiles. He chortled, "I think I've finally broken my jinx."

He showed us the North and South cards and said, "You are in four hearts after a two club overcall by West. He leads the king and ace of clubs. East echoes so he continues with the jack. Which one of dummy's trumps do you ruff with?"

We looked over the hand carefully. It was a close choice. The king would be the winning play if East held singleton queen or queen-small; the 10 play right if West held either of those holdings. It was far more likely if hearts broke 3-1 for East to be long so we replied, "The ten spot is the percentage play."

He said. "I figured that out also. It wasn't much better than the king play. Then I thought about my regular bad luck and decided to go against the percentage. I played dummy's king; led low; finessed and made my contract.

Saturday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CRYPTOQUOTES

GJDG UDA NI MNIKIG MJH ZKDSNYKI GJDG JNI MNIPHU NI MHZGJSKII. — IHVZDGKI

CAMP COUNSELING in Cameroon, Africa, is a far cry from that at a Girl Scout camp in northern Wisconsin, but Mary Sone handled the transition with ease. Ms. Sone, 24, is staying with a Mount Prospect family before returning to the University of Cameroon to major in education.

5,000 miles from home— but lovin' it

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

All summer camp counselors are trained to comfort mosquito-bitten kids lonely for home. But Mary Sone was better qualified than most other counselors at Camp Nowesco in northern Wisconsin — she was more than 5,000 miles from home herself.

Ms. Sone, a 24-year-old native of Cameroon, a small country on the western coast of Africa, spent two months at the Girl Scout camp outside New Berlin, Wis. She's spending a few days at Elsa Boint's Mount Prospect home before leaving for New York City and Cameroon next month.

Although she never had been outside Cameroon, Ms. Sone decided to participate in the counselor exchange program at the University of Cameroon, where she is an education student.

But she says the adjustment to the United States wasn't difficult — summer in northern Wisconsin isn't much different from the temperate climate of Cameroon, and the the people are "pretty similar."

"KIDS ARE THE same, for the most part," she said. "There's the same instinct of inquisitiveness in both countries, but American children are much freer.

"The kids here say what's on their minds — they're much more independent," she added with a smile. "In Cameroon, a strong respect for the elders makes the children a bit shy — but it is a definite advantage over the Americans."

The biggest adjustment was the double meaning of "camping," Ms. Sone said. In Cameroon, "Roughing it" is a cot in a college dormitory and carefully supervised jaunts into the heavily forested area of eastern Cameroon.

But there's a good reason for the coddling, Ms. Sone explained.

"Those forests are full of lions, elephants and tigers. I wouldn't want to camp out with those, would you?"

DESPITE HER unfamiliarity with pup tents and charred marshmallows, Ms. Sone said her childhood in a hunting village was good preparation for the rigors of Camp Nowesco.

"I was used to a lot of walking and having people around," she said. "But the snakes in Cameroon are all poisonous and can kill a person instantly, so I was pretty frightened of those grass snakes in Wisconsin.

Ms. Sone said she's looking forward to seeing New York City after two months of young girls and dusty cabins, and she'll use the time to indulge in a favorite hobby — shopping.

THE SPORT SUIT, colored heather beige and tailored with four patch pockets, a self belt, notched lapels and leather buttons could fit into both a leisure and work atmosphere. Right, a blue tweed vested suit with sweeping peak lapels and ticket pockets fits the look of the businessman. Both ensembles are tailored by Lebow Bro., a division of After Six, Inc.

A TRIO FROM Jaymar-Ruby boasts jacket with simulated raglan sleeves, vertical yoke and removable epaulets. Matching slacks have belt to match blue and gray geometric patterned shirt. Made from polyester, it's easy wear, easy care.

Male clothes-buying habits take a turn toward sober

Clothes for men this fall and winter are somewhat on the sober side. Clifford Grodd, one of New York's leading clothiers, says the nation's economic ills have drastically changed men's clothes-buying habits. They prefer to feel safe rather than individualistic so they buy suits and coats that last.

Regardless of where a man works, what he does or how much his pocketbook can afford, there are some new, and some old, concepts this season — neat, subdued and coordinated with only a trace of anything on the wild side.

Whether he decides to add a few new essentials to last year's basics or spend a wad, men's fashions for fall reflect a worldwide influence and are at home everywhere.

FOR THE BUSINESSMAN or the executive:

In tailored clothing, fine fabrics are the leading statement — flannels, wools, gabardines, worsteds and camel hair to name a few. Styling reflects a definite European influence with the high-styled shoulder treatment.

Lapels remain moderately wide. Colors tend toward the earthy tones of green, rust, camel and browns.

The vest, which has been a part of men's fashion picture for three centuries, is a definite added attraction. Chip Tolbert, fashion director of the Men's Fashion Association of America, estimates that as many as three out of four suits for younger men will be shown with vests and as many as one out of two in men's suits.

DOUBLE-BREASTED and 3-button suits will reach well below the hips and have deep vents.

Colors have toned down a bit in the dress shirt department. Fancy patterns, florals and geometrics are clear but not bright in shades of green, blue and earth tones that coordinate so well. Look for embroidery grounds on both dress and sport shirts.

Because shirts are on the fancy side, ties tend to be played down but are best when made of beautiful color and fabric. The classics are always the four-inch width, but many this season have been narrowed. Message ties proclaim everything from women's liberation to ecology.

The contemporary or traditional look in dress slacks leans toward a more subdued gentlemanly appearance — checks more common than plaids — solids more common than patterns — soft colors in keeping with the European influence. Cuffs are definitely gone. Pants have a wide and straight flow and just hit the top of the shoe.

FOR THE MAN who works in a more relaxed dress atmosphere:

The leisure suit has become common around places that have a "looser" working environment. The emphasis this season is on solid colors and shirt suit styling. Color, yarn textures and detail are the concepts to look for. The outfits will be shown as s e p a r a t e s and trios coordinating slacks, sweaters, turtle necks and shirts.

Tweeds, once considered only appropriate for "country suits" by the British, are showing up everywhere, especially in the sport coat areas. Balancing the tweeds are a host of stripes, solids and neat patterns.

Solid shades are also predicted with blazers and contrasting color solid slacks one of the newer approaches.

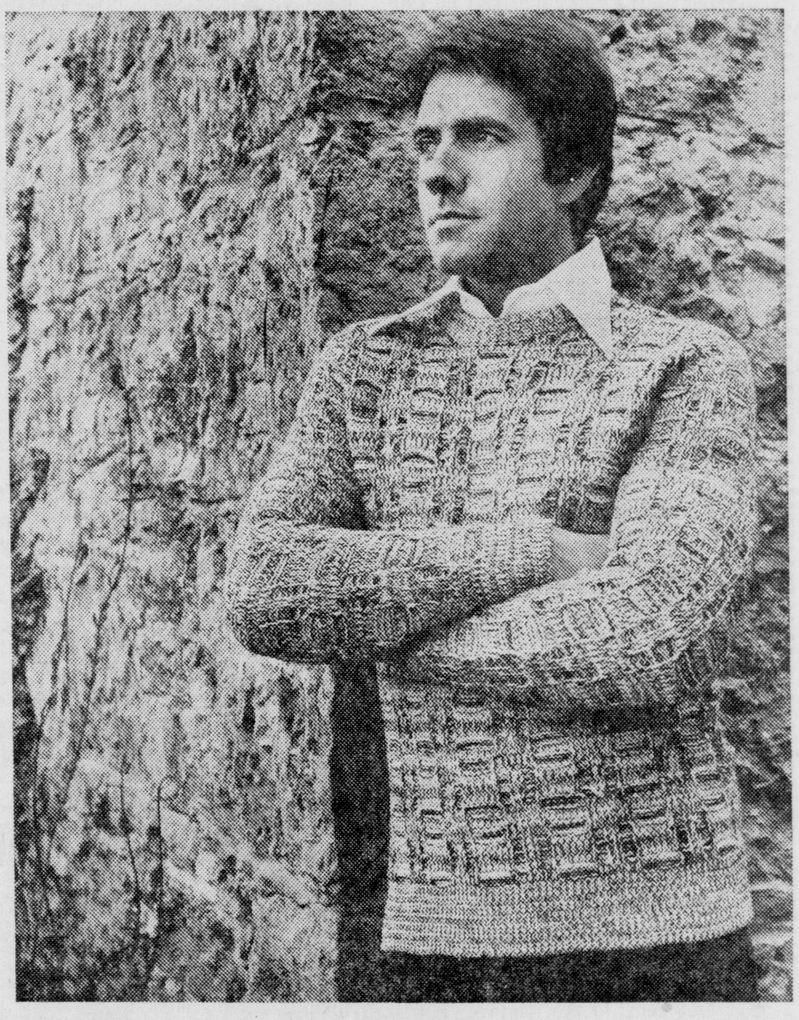
FOR THE MAN at leisure — the sportsman:

Sweaters, until the 1920s, were worn only for warmth. Then, with the American passion for golf, skiing and other active sports, sweaters became an integral part of the male wardrobe. Ski looks, conversational models depicting everything from bird to car motifs and geometrics make up the bulk of the designs with tweeds and plain colors filling in.

Sport shirts are bright but the splashy color has been toned down to blend neatly with leisure wear.

Jeans have been updated but are mainly in the washed out vein. Brushed or scrubbed denims — in matching pants and jackets — come in great variety.

Golf jackets are simple, primarily solid in color in the brighter shades. Boating jackets, also in brights, include zip front models, some with hoods and some terry-cloth lined. The slopes will also light up with stripes taking the downhill runs.



SWEATERS PLAY an important role in men's fall fashion. This brown tweed crewneck from Sears combines geometric design with a ribbed stitch at the neck, cuffs and on the bottom edge.

Dolores Parr is certified as a CPS

Dolores Parr, Mount Prospect, recently became a Certified Professional Secretary (CPS), one of only 8,713 such secretaries in the world.

She is employed at General Telephone Directory Co. headquarters in Des Plaines as executive secretary to Frank Broniarczyk, vice president-printing.

To become a CPS, Mrs. Parr took home studies and also review classes at Harper College the past three years. She then took a two-day examination which covered environmental relationships in business, business and public policy, the economics of management, financial analysis and the mathematics of business, communications and decision making and office procedures.

Mrs. Parr hopes to continue her studies at Harper to earn a degree in business administration. She is a member of Park-Plaines Chapter of National Secretaries Association and has served as chapter president and corresponding secretary. In 1973 she was named "Secretary of the Year" by her chapter.

Economy decides what men wear

by WALTER LOGAN

Designer John Weitz was peering into the future the other day and decided that it doesn't matter in what directions men's fashion goes — men are so clever they usually end up doing the right thing.

Take double-breasted suits, for example. He says European designers started foisting them off on the American public a few years ago and then the American man decided they were not comfortable and were awkward to wear. So DBs pretty well died out.

Or take the vested suit that is so popular at the moment in the fall lines. They're in now, Weitz concedes, but he said he believes the long hot summer will destroy them. If you wear vests, he says, you might as well return to garters, suspenders and all the other things that make men uncomfortable.

"IF MEN DO something foolish, it will go away," he said with the supreme self-confidence of a man who has just written a manifesto on his first 10 years in men's fashion, a booklet that lists with no pretense at modesty the scores of things he pioneered, including leisure suits.

As for the future, he said, it will depend on the economic situation. In an international recession the clothing industry turns to more disciplined, tailored clothing. But if there is real prosperity men will start tearing off their ties and hanging them from the nearest limb — meaning they will have enough time and money for more comfortable leisure wear.

"However if you aren't doing so well the trend will be toward the coat and tie look," he said. "Someone will say 'Irving, if you aren't doing so well put on a coat and tie for the stockholders and park that white Rolls-Royce behind the building. And don't look so tanned. Look businesslike."

"I BELIEVE ONE of the first things that will happen is that the youth look will fade and the more mature man will return to power," he said. "The man in his 40s finds it difficult to wear little boy's blue jeans — his rear end and his spare tire won't permit it.

"But a note of caution. Some of those designs being promoted are weekend leisure suits that people are beginning to wear to the office." The trouble with that, he said, is that they are doing it in towns that are not structured for leisure suits at the office. They should keep the stockholders in mind.

Weitz was one of the first designers to bring out blazer suits for men — simply a brass buttoned blazer that has matching pants. Back in 1970 he brought out what he called his "X" suit. This was the forerunner of the current leisure suits.

ONE OF HIS trademarks is his "Big Man" look — a line that has nothing to do with the size of the man. It is a line of super masculine clothes that is supposed to make a man feel big and think big, and the influence extends into Weitz' fall and winter lines this year.

One of his laments for men's wear is what he calls the gay influence on fashion — fashion magazines that show gays wearing gay fashions designed by gay designers. He calls it "fiction not fact" and says men sometimes feel estranged from the fashion pages.

Weitz, who appears in a lot of his own fashion ads, exudes masculinity. There are always action pictures — Weitz yachting, Weitz racing a car, Weitz skiing down Mount Fiji, Weitz smashing a tennis ball into the next county. But he translates a lot of that into his clothes.

"What's wrong with a well-dressed heterosexual?" he asks.

REVIEWING REPORTS for the Sept. 2 meeting of B'nai B'rith Women are Gail Raphael, Buffalo Grove, Marcia Krinsky, Arlington Heights, and Sheri Kamikow, Wheeling. Gail is essay chairman and hopes all school children will enter the contest.

B'nai B'rith council plans an anti-Semitism program

A program on anti-Semitism in north suburbia and announcement of a children's essay contest will highlight B'nai B'rith Women-North Suburban Illinois Council's semi-annual open meeting next Tuesday Sept. 2. The meeting will be held at the Oakton Recreation Center, 4701 Oakton, Skokie, at 8 p.m. and guests are invited.

The essay contest, set for late fall, is a new venture for the 10 B'nai B'rith Women chapters that comprise the North Suburban Illinois Council and is being planned in conjunction with the nation's Bicentennial celebration. Details will be sent to school administrators in the fall.

The program will feature a guest speaker from the Anti-Defamation League. Recent incidents of discrimination, hate literature, and property destruction in north suburbia, along with what people can do and how the Anti-Defamation League can help will be discussed.

The Anti-Defamation League, one of the many service agencies supported by B'nai B'rith Women, is designed to help combat discrimination, prejudice and bigotry for all minorities and to enhance the development of meaningful human relations.

For further information about the programs and activities of B'nai B'rith Women, readers may contact the Council president, Deedee Port, at 966-4249.

Yeast for fleas prescription is challenged

Dear Dorothy: I was brought up short by your veterinary-prescribed brewers' yeast for fleas. It does contribute to a fairly flea-free situation. But prescribed dosages?! My dear Dorothy, brewers' yeast, like beef, milk, cheese, beans and wheat, is simply food! Few foods are as beneficial, penny for penny, ounce for ounce. And it's available in tablet or powder form at a ridiculously low price.

As a cat-owned dog owner of long standing, I recommend the tablets for animals. They generally don't care for fine powders on their food that cause sneezing. So nip in a health-food store and invest in one of the best food buys going. The fact that it's a health aid, with no side effects, no recommended dosage (except calorically), and no men or women in white are necessary at $10 office fees — well, that's pure gravy. — Lucy Weber.

At age 65, one member of our family was teaching three dance classes and all of us wondered whether it was really due to all the brewers' yeast and tiger milk she consumed. Nevertheless, it strikes me that the vet makes sense when he says it's good to know whether a dosage should be a teaspoon per 25 pounds of dog or a tablespoon.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a suggestion for cleaning those hard-to-get places such as under refrigerators, between two large appliances and so forth. I tie a piece of old nylon underwear to a yardstick, slightly dampening the material. The thin, flexible yardstick — with a dry cloth — is also perfect for dusting these fairly inaccessible places. — Jean Turnblad.

Dear Dorothy: I don't wear slips with straps very often but when I do, I fasten a small safety pin inside the shoulder seam of each side of the dress. The safety pin is then fastened around the strap so it slips up and down but not from side to side. — Della Blatt

A European honeymoon

A 10-day trip to Switzerland, Germany and Austria followed the Aug. 3 wedding of Susan G. Klingner of Arlington Heights and Daniel J. Hogan of Westchester. They are now living in Monmouth, Ill., where the bridegroom teaches high school physical education and is assistant football coach.

Susan is the daughter of the Harold W. Klingners and this summer taught swimming and was a life guard for the Arlington Heights Park District. She graduated in June from Illinois State University.

She and Daniel, son of the Robert G. Hogans, were married at 5 p.m. by candlelight in Our Saviour Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, and then visited Susan's grandmother, Mrs. Agnes Bassindale, also of Arlington, in the hospital before going on to the reception. They greeted 200 guests at a dinner at Itasca Country Club.

SUSAN WORE HER grandmother's engagement lavalier at the neckline of her white sata peau bridal gown. A double ruffle trimmed in Venise lace accented the scoop neck and complemented her large white picture hat with matching veil. Her bouquet was of white orchids, roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Six attendants preceded her down the church aisle, each in a different shade of the rainbow. The gowns were of pastel dotted swiss trimmed in Venise lace, and each girl carried a bouquet of mixed blooms in the color of her ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Hogan

Maid of honor Nancy Hillmer, the bride's cousin from Thiensville, wore pink. Bridesmaids were Caron Klingner, Susan's sister, in lavender; Janet Klingner, her cousin from Bellwood, in light green; Jeri Yost, Arlington Heights, in yellow; and Julie Cooley, Arlington Heights, pale blue.

THERE WAS ALSO a junior bridesmaid, the groom's cousin, Mary Hawkins from Westchester, who wore apricot.

Robert Bensen of Westchester, a cousin of the groom, was his best man. Groomsmen included another cousin, Bill Hawkins, Westchester and three of Dan's friends, Al Zalabak, Dan Steinbach and Kevin Cochran.

The bride's two brothers, Skip and Tom, ushered.

Susan is a '72 graduate of Hersey High School. Her husband graduated in '73 from Illinois State and played two summers with the New York Mets baseball team's minor league.

Sentimental sword used to cut their wedding cake

A Navy sword belonging to the groom's father was used by Stephen Warren Paris and his bride, Patricia Jane Vaughan, to cut their wedding cake.

Son of Lt. Cmdr. (Ret.) and Mrs. Warren F. Paris, Buffalo Grove, Stephen and Patricia, daughter of the Clark C. Vaughans, Grundy Center, Iowa, were married Aug. 2 in United Methodist Church, Grundy Center. The reception, held in the church, followed the 2 p.m. double ring service.

Both Stephen and Patricia are students at Iowa State University where Patricia is a fourth year student in geology and Stephen a graduate student in aerospace engineering. Stephen, a graduate of Fremd, was graduated in May from Iowa State.

THE BRIDE MADE her own ensemble and her attendants' ensembles, including the flower arrangements. Her own gown was of satin with chiffon sleeves, and the maids' gowns, in pale blue dotted swiss, were of similar design. Mary Win Vaughan was her sister's maid of honor and Julie Ann Keeling, Carlisle, Iowa, was bridesmaid. The bouquetss were baby's breath and straw flowers with Patricia's including blue daisies.

Stephen chose his brother, Kenneth, as best man, and the bride's brother, Larry, as groomsman. Ushers were the bride's brother, Brent, and Donald Steffen and Martin Raye, both of Ames.

The couple greeted 108 guests at the reception before leaving for Waterloo, Iowa, for an overnight honeymoon.

Arlington pair married in Faith church Aug. 3

A two-week honeymoon in Monterey, Mexico, for Sharon Armstrong Metz and Jack Richard Christiansen followed their Aug. 3 wedding in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights. The newlyweds are now residing in Arlington Heights.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Metz, Barrington, Sharon was graduated from Palatine High School and will be attending Harper College this fall. Jack, son of the Richard Christiansens, Arlington Heights, graduated from Prospect High and attended Northern Illinois University. He is with IBM in Chicago.

For the 4 p.m. double rin service Sharon chose an ivory gown of peau de soie and Cluny lace with embroidered pearl trim. She carried ivory-tipped Hawaiian orchids with stephanotis and pink roses.

HER SISTER, Leslie, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were the groom's sisters, Linda Underwood, Wheeling, and Cynthia, Arlington Heights, and Sharon Bonneau, Bensenville. The attendants wore chiffon halter gowns in a blue, pink and lavender print, with capes. Picture hats and baskets of carnations, blue daisies, baby's breath and pin roses completed their ensembles.

Also in a halter gown of the same print was the groom's 5-year-old sister, Anita, flower girl. The bride's 13-year-old brother, Chris, was ring bearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Christiansen

Nick Avello, Des Plaines, was best man, and the couple's brothers, Richard Christiansen, Arlington Heights, and Kurt Metz, Rolling Meadows, and Mark Metz, Barrington, along with the groom's brother-in-law, James Underwood, Wheeling, were ushers.

A reception for 225 guests was held at Mr. Allegretti's in Rosemont.
